The Focus-List shows stocks in which we take a particular interest. The initial price indicates when our particular interest arose. Stocks are deleted from the Focus-List when the relative attractiveness drops below 1 or when we can cite specific reasons based on qualitative judgments strong enough to override the quantitative data expressed in Ratings and their Rate of Change (ROC).

Market breadth is no timing indicator. However, it is the instrument of choice to understand how the market is likely to deal with the news flow. A market in which the vast majority of stocks move in the same direction is simply not ready to let daily news derail its path – up or down. By contrast, “narrow” markets, in which mainly large caps move in one direction, are news sensitive beyond the short term.

To exploit the power of market breadth to inform about the structure, its measurement starts at the very top: worldwide. If the global environment is favourable for equities, nearly all market indices trend up, at different speeds, supported by 80% or more of their constituents. Below the global level, market breadth is measured in the sectors, the sectors’ industries, the regions and the countries.

We note an increased and spreading contraction of market breadth in all sectors and countries with the result that there are:

- no A-sectors
- no A-regions
- no A-countries

anywhere in the word, that

- the only B-country is the USA.

In the USA, the counter-poison to a low and contracting market breadth, namely sector rotation, has come to a halt, as it has worldwide, too.

Meanwhile, demand concentrates in a large cap field as illustrated below, where we show the S&P 100 (daily candles), the S&P 500 (dashed red line), the S&P 400 Mid Cap (dotted green line) and the S&P 600 Small Cap (drawn-out blue line).

The first graph shows the relative performance of the S&P 500, the S&P 400 and the S&P 600 relative to the S&P 100 for 5 years:

The second graph shows the same for 12 months:

The third graph illustrates the same relationship for 3 months:

This is a massive focus on the large caps and a flight out of in particular the small caps. The lack of emerging strength in global sectors is a major sign of danger, because investors obviously do not find alternatives for small and mid caps. It is a situation where the proverbial butterfly over the Amazonas can trigger a major storm in New York.

Legend

Rating	ROC (Rate of Change)	Development since previous analysis	Relative strength to index/sector
< 66 = not attractive > 66 = attractive	< 0 = negative > 0 = positive	↑ = positive → = equal ↓ = negative	< 1 = not attractive > 1 = attractive
> 80 = in conjunction with ROC < 55 = in conjunction with ROC	> +5 = negative mean-reversion < -5 = positive mean reversion

Market Structure

Unifinanz Trust reg. categorises the market into five structures:

Market Structure	Symptoms	Consequences	News	Price Reaction
A Homogenously positive	Uptrending indices confirmed by expanding market breadth and rising momentum	Eventual price shocks lasting a few days to weeks, thereafter resumption of uptrends	good bad	positive none, or only temporary
B Heterogenously positive	Uptrending indices, contracting market breadth and negative momentum divergences	Trend reversal after a) uptrend acceleration or b) time-consuming trendless volatility	good bad	none negative
C Transition phase	Indices trending sideways as a result of significantly diverging trends of individual stocks	Random walk	good bad	unpredictable unpredictable
D Homogenously negative	Downtrending indices confirmed by contracting market breadth and falling momentum	Eventual rallies lasting a few days to weeks, quick reversals followed by resumed downtrends	good bad	none negative
E Heterogenously negative	Downtrending indices, expanding market breadth and positive momentum divergences	Trend reversal after c) downtrend acceleration or d) time-consuming trendless volatility	good bad	Positive initially negative, then retracting downswing and closing neutrally to positive

Object of the Monitor financial analysis

The Monitor publications do not take the individual circumstances of the subscribers into account and do not represent personal recommendations in the sense of investment advice. The legal basis for the Monitor financial analysis are Art. 3, Para. 1, lit. a. and Art. 8 of the Marktmissbrauchsgesetz (MG, LR 954.3; www.gesetze.li) i.s. of the directive relating to the preparation of financial analysis according to the MG (FinMV, LR 954.311). No Monitor represents a proposition, an offer or a request to offer and no public advertisement to buy or sell any investment- or any specific product.

Intended frequency of updates

The volatility of analysed market data is monitored continuously. When necessary (i.e. following significant changes in the data or exceptional events), updates are carried out and published as promptly as possible. The analysis is re-evaluated periodically, usually monthly, but at least every quarter. This re-evaluation also includes an update of automatically entered technical data.

Valuation principles for equities, indices and currencies

The analysis prepared by Unifinanz Trust reg. is derived from research based on financial markets analysis (top-down approach). The ratings are calculated with the help of mathematical and statistical methods. The ROCs indicate the rate of change of these Ratings. Ratings are calculated on the basis of price trends, volatility, momentum, relative strength and sentiment data. These factors are used to determine the attractiveness of country indices, sector indices, individual stocks and currencies. This allows for different Ratings as well as different ROCs to be compared. Shares' and Indices' Ratings are put into context by their relative attractiveness to the underlying sector in the case of a Sector Monitor or the main Index in the case of an Equity Monitor. When monthly, weekly or daily Ratings are mentioned these are constructed on a basis of 20 to 40 periods. Average Ratings are essentially based on a 6- to 12-month horizon. However, they are subject to constantly changing market conditions and represent a snapshot. Expectations may be met at a faster or slower pace, or may be revised upward or downward.

Our analysis are based exclusively on technical financial market data such as prices and volume, which are publicly accessible and can be retrievable from public information services (like Reuters, Bloomberg, Lenz & Partner, etc.). Macro-economic data and data of individual operations are not incorporated in our analysis. The prices of securities and indices which we use for our analysis are the latest published closing prices which were available at the time of the preparation of the analysis.

Avoiding and handling conflicts of interest

Employees of Unifinanz Trust reg. who are responsible for preparing and/or forwarding financial analyses are subject to the relevant legal and regulatory provisions. Furthermore, preparation of financial analyses is also regulated by an internal directive. This includes rules on recognition and handling of conflicts of interest. This analysis is prepared in accordance with the Liechtenstein government's Ordinance on the Preparation of Financial Analysis According to the Market Abuse Act (MAA) (Ordinance on Analysis of Financial Instruments under the Market Abuse Act) of 3 July 2007, based on the MAA of 24 November 2006, Article 30, (Liechtenstein Legal Gazette 2007 No. 18).
